Joe, I'll be out of town. Two thoughts: 1) we are in a Public Relations battle and so far we are not winning and 2) the Ward races this fall are critical . Bill

Let's get together for a meeting Monday evening.

Who can be there?

I'll work on finding a location

Agree with George, Nicole, Bob et al. Support council, stay engaged.

When they did the listening sessions, they recorded suggestions. Do you know how silly I felt saying keep it just as it is? The support for the project would not come through from the listening sessions, just the dissent.

Enjoy the journey,

My gut is to let it go for now. Let council do what it feels is best and focus on campaigns this fall as needed. Fighting this publicly lends the recall effort more credibility and legitimacy than its actual support level warrants. There is no way that they get enough signatures for a recall and none of the at large seats come up for two years.

I've been thinking about it. Maybe a small letter to the editor campaign might help. I think we avoid responding in any way to the Oberts/Hudson's Voice people.

Maybe our letters focus on things like reminding people of Beth and Alex's voting record up until this point, reminding people that Hal had been staunchly pro-phase II this WHOLE time and he has a voting record to match, reminding people of all of the work that went into this years ago (can we get someone from planning commission to write this?), maybe we get someone from each board/commission who has worked on this project to write a letter?

I think we should focus on positivity, reminding people that Hudson did the work and put in the time, and we are not going into this blindly.
