Subject: The Numbers

I suspect the results of yesterday's election rolled around in your head last evening while you tried to sleep unless, of course, Lager & Vine lived up to its name for you. You know the numbers from the election. I just wanted to put some into perspective.

17,478 registered voters

2,554 voted against, 14.6% of the total voters, leaving 85.4% of the voters either voting for the issue or remaining silent.

176 was the winning margin which represents 1.0% of the registered voters

Mandate? Hardly. This advisory vote is just that, advisory. There is no overwhelming sentiment to abandon the basic plan. Good luck with your decision making.
